The New Mental Health Act Code of Practice 2015

The revised Mental Health Act Code of Practice comes in to effect on April 1st 2015. It provides statutory guidance to Doctors, Approved Clinicians, Approved Mental Health Professionals, and managers and staff of health care providers. It is also relevant to Commissioners of health services, the police, ambulance staff and others in health and social services. The Code has new chapters on human rights, mental capacity and deprivation of liberty, the Care Programme Approach, and information for victims. The revisions reflect recent case law such as the Supreme Court judgment in the Cheshire West and MIG and MEG v Surrey cases, and the Enfield decision on consultation with nearest relatives.

With the increasing demands on various services, many staff find it challenging to quickly familiarise themselves with such a significant, but vital document. This course will give delegates the opportunity to quickly grasp the most pertinent features of the Code in order to successfully apply them in their work and comply with the legal requirement to follow the Code. Delegates will also have the opportunity to ask questions about the new Code tailored to their individual needs.

The day will include the following key topics:
